Snack Quest

Kenya's brand for imported Asian snacks — sold online, and through vending machines other people own.

RAISING UP TO KSH 10M · FIRST CLOSE KSH 3M

Kelvin Kimathi, Founder & CEO · snackquests.shop

THE PROBLEM

Kenyans discover these snacks online. Buying them is still hard.

TikTok and Instagram put Korean and Japanese snacks in front of Nairobi every day. The demand is created online; a trusted place to buy hasn't caught up.

Scattered

A few import shops and Instagram sellers. Stock appears and disappears without warning.

Opaque

Prices vary from seller to seller, and there is no brand to trust or come back to.

Trust before payment

Many people will not pay online, upfront, to a seller they do not know yet.

177,800 TikTok views in 28 days. 24 paying customers in our first 30 days of trading. The attention is there; the trusted place to buy is not.

THE SOLUTION

One brand, sold online, in vending machines and on shelves.

Asian snacks

Bought at import volume, co-loaded with an established importer.

Snack Quest

One brand, one stock, one system that records cost and margin on every sale.

ONLINE · LIVE

snackquests.shop

M-Pesa checkout, delivery across Nairobi. Shows us what sells.

MACHINES · THIS RAISE

Snack Quest vending machines

M-Pesa ready, inside airports, campuses and offices. Owners pay for the machine; we stock and run it.

SHELVES · NEXT

Snack Quest corners in shops

Mini-marts, then supermarkets, once the machines show what sells.

Machines before a store: a machine in the wrong place can be moved. A lease can’t.

TRACTION

What's proven, and what isn't yet.

ONLINE · FIRST 30 DAYS OF TRADING, 23 AUG - 21 SEP 2026

KSh 102,700
Revenue from 24 paid orders, 24 customers

KSh 4,279
Average order, against the KSh 3,500 we planned for

27.1%
Gross margin, against a 45% target: snacks bought locally, near retail

Repeat purchases yet: the oldest customer was 30 days old

MACHINES · DEMAND FROM OUR ADS, OCTOBER 2026

200+	Asked to buy and run a Snack Quest machine	FORM ANSWERS
80	Say they have the cash now, or by 1 November	STATED
9	Existing machines agreed for our stock: one owner of five, one of four with a machine at JKIA	NOT YET SIGNED
1	Buyer committed: a USIU alumnus, sale targeted before December	COMMITTED

RUNNING TODAY

- ✓ Live storefront with M-Pesa checkout
- ✓ Custom-printed Snack Quest boxes
- ✓ Delivery across Nairobi
- ✓ Cost and margin recorded on every order
- ✓ 62-snack catalogue, three boxes

Form answers are not sales. We count a sale when money moves, and none of the machine numbers is revenue yet.

CUSTOMER ACQUISITION

We create demand cheaply.

177.8K

TikTok views in 28 days, from under two weeks of organic posting and three days of ads

200+

People asking to buy a machine, from our own ads

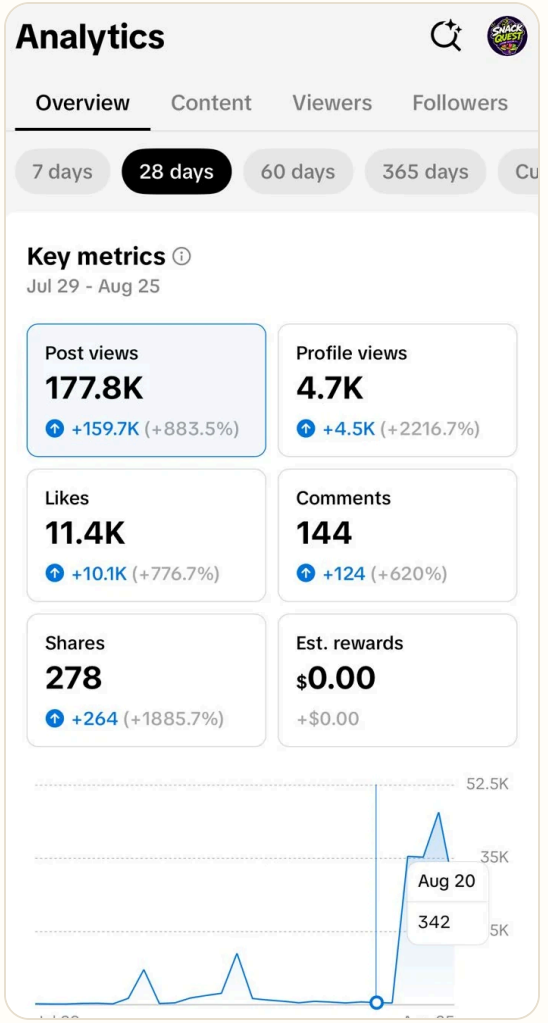

33

Creators on tracked referral links, many paid in product rather than cash

Creators who approached us unprompted, 1.54M followers between them

Not proven yet: conversion. Creators had driven 3 attributed sales by 21 September. Turning attention into repeat buyers is what this raise measures.

BUSINESS MODEL

The owner pays for the machine. We earn on it every month.

1 Machine sale ONE-OFF

Snack Quest machines, M-Pesa ready and branded, imported and sold to owners.

2 Wholesale snacks EVERY RESTOCK

Every machine on the network is stocked by us, from our import line.

3 Management fee MONTHLY

We stock, service and run the machine; the owner sees sales and payouts on a dashboard we have built.

\+ Online sales LIVE TODAY

The shop keeps trading and keeps telling us what sells.

The lever is import margin

27.1% gross today, buying locally at close to retail. Importing at volume, co-loaded into an established importer's containers on Oloitoktok Road, is how we reach the 35% floor and the 45% plan.

Stated carefully

Machine price, management fee and wholesale terms are set with the first contracts. Machines are sold as equipment with a separate service contract. No return is promised to buyers, and the contract goes through legal review, including the Capital Markets Authority question, before the first sale.

WHY NOW

Kenyans already pay with their phones. The machines just need the product.

~53M

Mobile money subscriptions in Kenya, January – March 2026. Subscriptions, not people, but paying a machine by M-Pesa is not a new habit we have to teach.

Machines already sell to Kenyans

Milk and coffee are already sold through vending machines here. The habit exists; a brand people seek out does not.

Where the machines go

- Airports and transport hubs: JKIA first, with a partner machine already standing there
- Campuses: USIU first, the audience already watching us on TikTok
- Offices: the same faces every day, the cleanest read on repeat buying
- Hospitals and hotels: long waits, visitors, little else on offer

Each placement is footfall somebody else already pays for.

We do not quote a national snack-market figure. Our market is counted in placements and in what each machine sells, numbers the first nine machines will give us.

COMPETITION

Why Snack Quest, and not a supermarket or an Instagram seller.

TODAY'S OPTION	WHAT IT DOES WELL	WHERE IT FALLS SHORT
Supermarkets	Trusted, everywhere	A few imported lines, chosen for the whole shop rather than curated
Import shops	A real range	One address; you have to travel to it
Instagram sellers	Follow the trends	Pay a stranger upfront; stock and prices vary
Ordering from abroad	Anything	Slow, and expensive once shipped
Snack Quest	A curated range that follows the trends, paid on the spot by M-Pesa, inside places people already go, under one brand to come back to

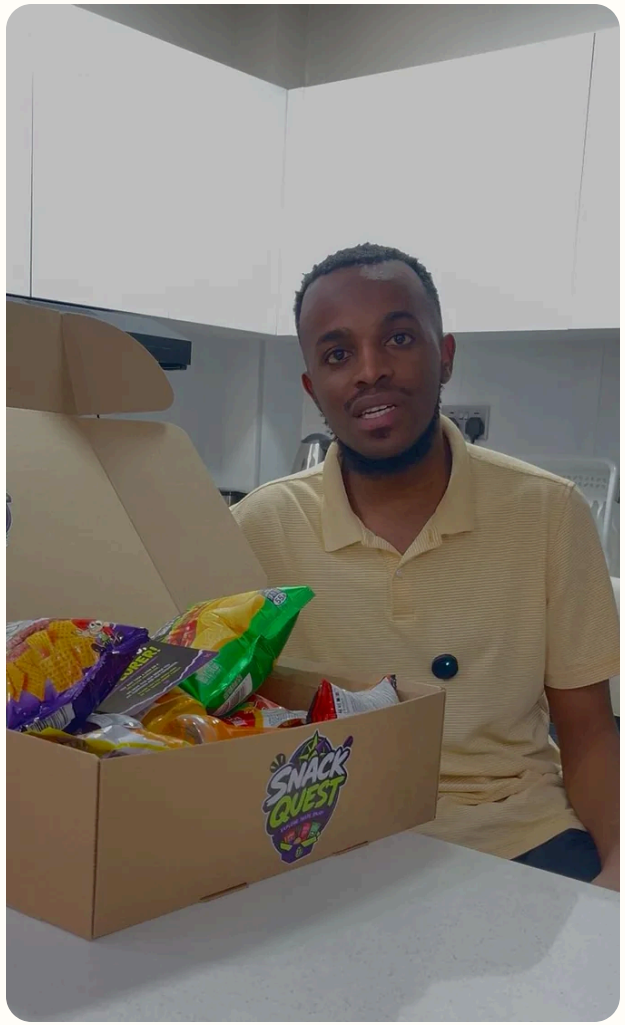

What's hard to copy, together

- Import margin at volume, through a co-loading partner
- A brand built by creators, at low cash cost
- Our own machine software: remote monitoring, stock layouts, technician jobs and the owner dashboard, already built
- Placement contracts with machine owners

Anyone can import a machine. The combination is the edge, and we are early in building it.

TEAM

A growth marketer who builds.

Kelvin Kimathi

FOUNDER & CEO

Marketing manager at a Kenyan betting operator, part of its growth from launch: paid acquisition at scale, affiliates first. Built Snack Quest's storefront, M-Pesa checkout, per-order margin tracking and the machine management software. Full-time on Snack Quest from close.

Today

Two people: the founder, and one employee packing and dispatching orders.

Hiring first

A rider to run the machine restocking rounds; then an account manager and sales.

Advisers wanted

Import and customs; vending hardware and servicing.

MILESTONES

What the first KSh 3M must prove in 90 days.

NETWORK

9 partner machines trading

With monthly sales, by machine and by product

MARGIN

Gross margin above 35% on imported stock

From 27.1% today. Reported the week the first import lands

SALES

First buyer machines sold, with deposits

USIU first, on a lawyer-reviewed contract

CUSTOMERS

Repeat above 20%, CAC under KSh 1,500

Repeat within 60 days of a first order

Months 1–3 FIRST CLOSE

Sign and stock the nine partner machines. Place the first co-loaded import. Set the machine price, fee and contract after legal review. Take buyer deposits.

Months 4–6 SECOND CLOSE

Import our first three machines. Deliver buyer machines. Open the first supermarket shelves; add a warehouse and van when wholesale starts.

Later EARNED BY DATA

A flagship store, sited by what the machines sell. Then other Kenyan cities.

Reported monthly from the system that already records cost and margin on every order.

THE ASK

Raising up to KSh 10M. First close: KSh 3M.

Equity or a convertible note; terms to be agreed. The first close proves the numbers. The second opens when they are in.

FIRST CLOSE · NOW

Stock: the first co-loaded import	1,500,000
People, 3 months: founder and a restock rider	450,000
Legal and contracts, including the CMA review	350,000
Marketing, 3 months	300,000
Restock motorbike	175,000
Company setup	100,000
Buffer for customs and surprises	125,000
Total	KSh 3,000,000

SECOND CLOSE · WHEN THE 90-DAY NUMBERS ARE IN

Three Snack Quest machines, fitted with our system	1,030,000
Stock: the second import	1,500,000
People: account manager, sales, operations	1,150,000
Branded shelves for ten supermarkets	1,000,000
Marketing, and a second motorbike	475,000
Warehouse and van, at the first wholesale deal	1,845,000
Total	KSh 7,000,000

Instead of betting on one store, we are building a network other people pay to grow.
